

Artificial Intelligence is the field of creating computer systems that can perform tasks that normally require human intelligence.